It is often done overnight when the dough is placed in the refrigerator, slowing the rise so it can be freshly baked in the morning, dividing up the labor and allowing you to have fresh bread at a chosen time. It is also done to increase the flavor of the bread and to give the crust a darker color when baked.

What to Know About Retarding Bread Dough

The only fault I can find is that although called 'Fresh Bread in the Morning', there is not a huge amount of discussion and information about using the delay timer function. This is something I would have liked more about, as although I have used it, I have forgotten the tips and hints I had assimilated over the years.
